CROWD SEES SURF TRAGEDY

Musician Swept to Sea So Swiftly Ne Help Could Save Him. ATLANTIC CITY, August 13.—Board walk crowds witnessed a sensational walk crowds witnessed a sensational tragedy in the surf yesterday, when Vincent Callimo, a member of Vagcella's Italian Band, playing on the Steel Pier, was drowned and his body carried to sea, in spite of the frantic efforts of T. Candido, another bandman, and beach life guards to save him.

The drowning occurred at the foot of Madison avenue, when the boundwalk was crowded with promenalization, who was first clarinet in the band, and Candido, a snare drummer, had gone in to bathe together, when they were suddenly swept off their feet by the current. In the excitement the clarinetist clutched his friend in a deadly-grip and dragged him down with him. Candido loosened the hold after a desperate struggle, and, half-drowned himself, attempted to pull Callimo back into the shallow water, but the body slipped from his hands and was carried rapidly away by the swift tide.

Life guards responded to Candido's cries of distress and dashed through the surf with line and buoy. They arrived too late to reach the clarinetist, however. Orders have been issued to the body to wash up along the beach. Callimo was twenty-one years old, and lived in New York with his parents and several brothers and sisters.
